About John D. Moseley

John D. Moseley led Austin College for 25 years as president from 1953 to 1978 and as chancellor from 1978 to 1981. His presidency was a time of tremendous growth for Austin College and for independent higher education, helping establish Austin College as an innovative presence among institutions of higher education and changing the way institutions dealt with tuition, church-related entities, and curriculum.

The first 10 years of his leadership at Austin College resulted in a nearly tripled student population, double the number of campus buildings, and financial health, brought about in part by the elimination of athletics scholarships. Dr. Moseley's attention then turned to the College's curriculum, leading faculty efforts in innovative and cutting-edge programs. Growth and innovation did not wane during the remainder of his tenure.

Upon his retirement from Austin College, Dr. Moseley and his wife, Sara Bernice, remained in Sherman as cherished members of the Austin College community. Dr. Moseley died in 2009.
