Visiting Assistant Professor of Public Health

The department of Public Health at Austin College invites applications for a three year visiting position (with the possibility of conversion to tenure-track) at the rank of Visiting Assistant Professor beginning August 2016. Ph.D. in Public Health or a related field required.

Candidates are expected to teach Health Management and Policy, Health Care Law and Regulation, and Health Organization Leadership and Management, and offer other courses based on expertise and program needs. The successful candidate will have demonstrated interest in the field of Public Health and will have a strong commitment to teaching and an active research agenda focused on public health concerns; research program must be accessible to undergraduates.

The department is located in the IDEA Center: a new three-story science facility including 16 classrooms, 32 advanced laboratory-classrooms, a 108-seat auditorium, and an observatory. The IDEA Center houses the departments of biology, chemistry, computer science and mathematics, public health and physics.

Austin College is a leading national independent liberal arts college located north of Dallas in Sherman, Texas. Founded in 1849, making it the oldest institution of higher education in Texas operating under original charter and name, the college is related by covenant to the Presbyterian Church (USA).
