Over 2/3 of Austin College students have an international experience
Eleven Austin College students, including Carla Garcia ’15, pictured, wanted to improve their Spanish-language skills and their knowledge of Mexican culture and literature during January Term 2015. Where better to do that than Mexico? Along with an Austin College faculty member, they traveled to Querétaro, Mexico, where they were in class four hours every weekday morning at the Universidad Autónoma de Querétaro. Beyond the classroom, students enjoyed community service, cultural activities, and explorations that included Guanajuato, the Monarch Butterfly Sanctuary, Teotihuacan pyramids, and the National Museum of Anthropology in Mexico City, to name only a few examples. Homestays provided additional cultural interactions.
