

THE SHERMAN MUSEUM

TAYLOR SPURGIN

FIRST DAY

- Meeting my director, Dan Steelman
- Setting up for Dino Days: Ice Age
 - Stegodon
 - Woolly Rhinoceros
 - Giant Beaver
- Learning the museum

TOURS, KIDS, AND DINOSAURS OH MY!

- What I do
- Community involvement
 - Christmas in July
 - AC Non-Profit Fair
 - Roo Boo

DINO ACADEMY

- Hands-on learning
- Incorporating art, science, and history

INTERNSHIP TO JOB

- Herald Democrat articles
- Community Connection

Dino Academy takes on ice age

⌵ HIDE CAPTION

Taylor Spurgin points to the area of this Acrocantnosaurus skull replica on display at the Sherman Museum where a 40-foot long crocodile bit it. You can still see a fragment of the crocodile tooth in the skull. Spurgin will be the instructor at Dino Academy at the Sherman Museum July 18 and 19. (Chris Jennings / Herald Democrat)

WHAT I LEARNED

- Community involvement is important
- I believe getting children excited about learning and encouraging them to learn more is essential for their future.
- Seeing kids enjoying learning from me is the greatest reward I could ask for.

