Aspiring scholars: get paid to research next summer!

Scarbrough Summer Research Program Fellowships
Applications due March 1, 2019

Applications are now being accepted for the 2019 Scarbrough Summer Research Program (SSRP) in the Humanities and Social Sciences. The SSRP program supports faculty-sponsored student research in humanities or social science disciplines. Faculty sponsors receive a stipend of $2100 for their oversight, including the completion of an independent or directed study with student fellows in the following academic year. Successful student applicants receive a $3000 stipend to support 10 weeks of dedicated summer research on a project of interest, as well as an additional $500 toward other research expenses.

Often an initial step toward work on a Senior Honors Thesis or toward future graduate study, recipients of a Scarbrough Fellowship are expected to share their findings publicly through a special panel at the Austin College Scholarship Conference each spring and to attend two required short workshops held prior to and following the summer of award.

Eligibility:
- Cumulative GPA of 3.5 or higher
- Completion of at least 10 regular-semester, full-time credits at AC

For a full description of program timelines, requirements, and application forms, please consult the Scarbrough Research program page on the Austin College website.

Questions? Contact Mindy Landeck at mlandeck@austincollege.edu or at campus extension x3096